WE'RE GOING PLACES . . .

ANDERSON COLLEGE IS . . .

Taking a break!
Moving up in the world!
Sleepin' double time!
Look at those legs!

GOING PLACES

Where's all the money going?

You wouldn't dare. Psyche!

We are moving down the pathway towards the future driven by specific goals. Whether these goals are academic, social, spiritual, or a combination of the three, each individual has a guideline for accomplishing these goals.

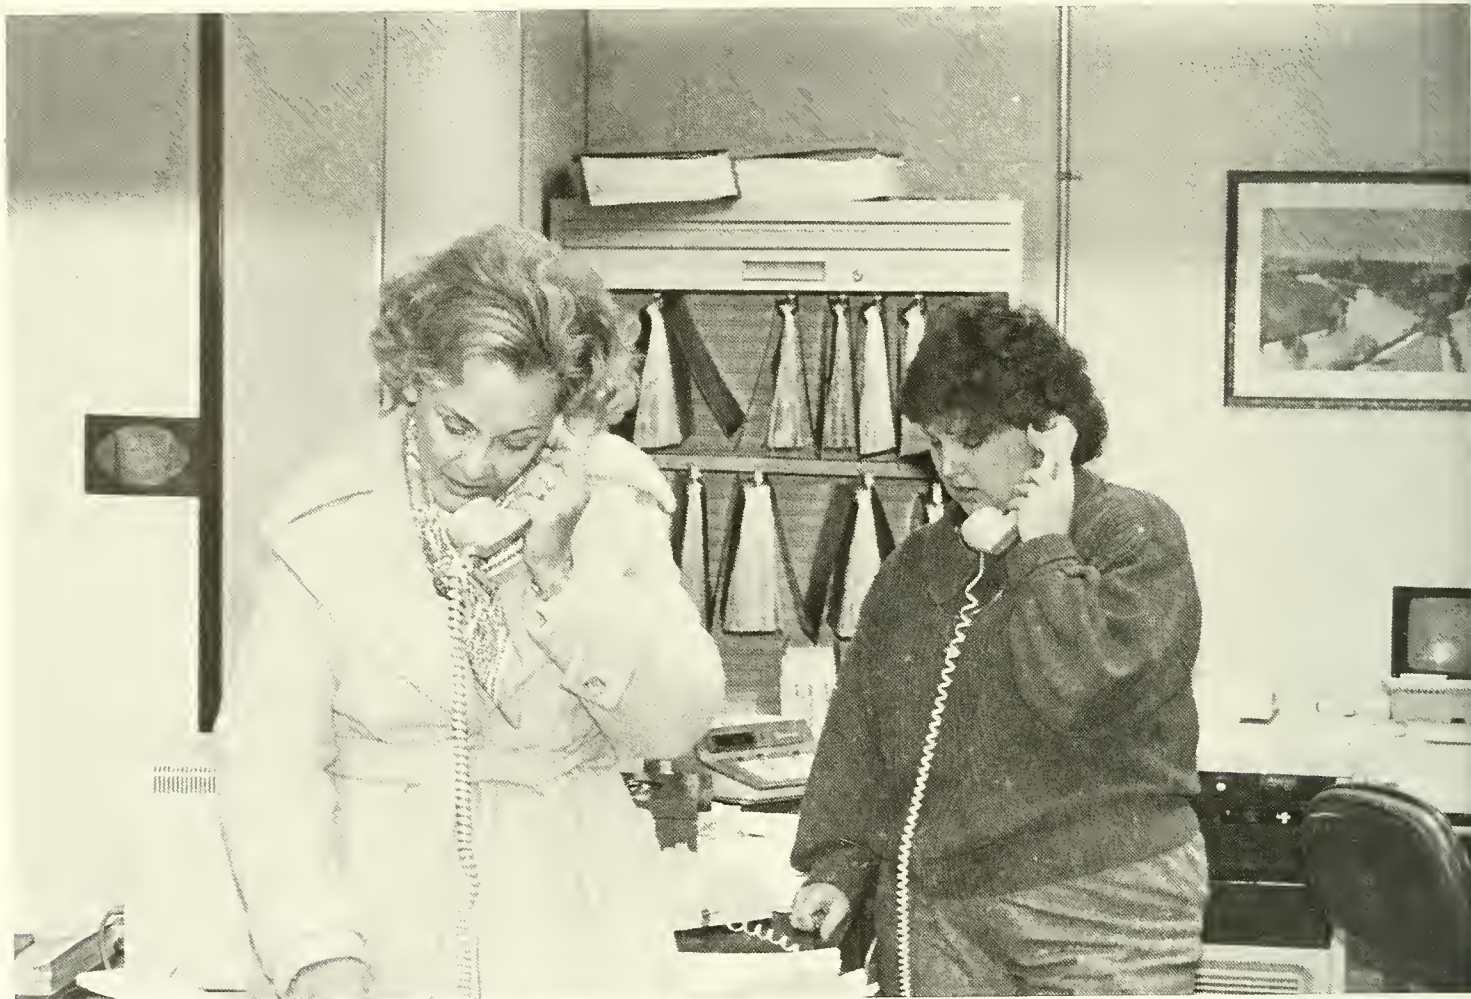

Academically, we are seeking out areas of interest in order to gain further knowledge for future occupations, self-improvement or self-satisfaction. Through academics, we aim to use self-improvement as a stepping stone to a desired place in the job market, and attain self-satisfaction.

Socially, we are headed towards new heights in friendship, caring, and understanding. Learning to build new relationships today enables us to prepare for additional relationships in the future. By building new relationships, we're going to maintain a prominent place in society and also use our knowledge to contribute to society.

Spiritually, we are looking for a better understanding of ourselves and the things we truly believe in our hearts. When we make sincere efforts to use academics to the best of our abilities, increase our spiritual and social awareness, and to achieve our individual goals, we can truthfully state . . . we're going places.

STEPPIN' OUT

Business is booming!

Sometimes you just want to be alone.

Going to answer nature's call.

How long have we been here?
What time is it?

First lady? No, she is the freshmen class president.

Again? Practice, Practice, Practice!

Leave some for the fish.

Caught between classes.

Now, that's a clean white towel.

According to my records, your department is overdrawn.

Would the real "Shannon Smith" please stand up?

Everyone needs a friend.

Working diligently to keep her grades high.

Lights, camera, action!

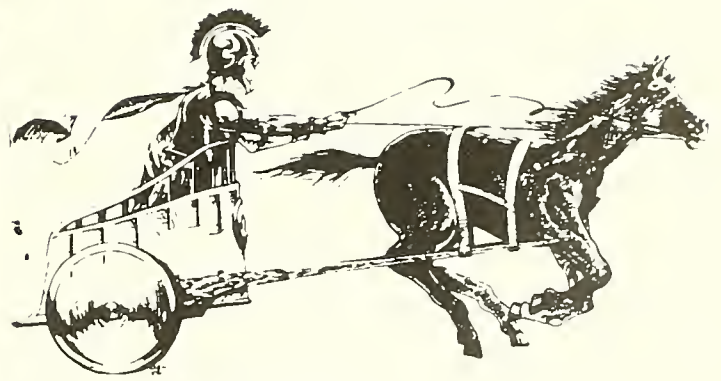

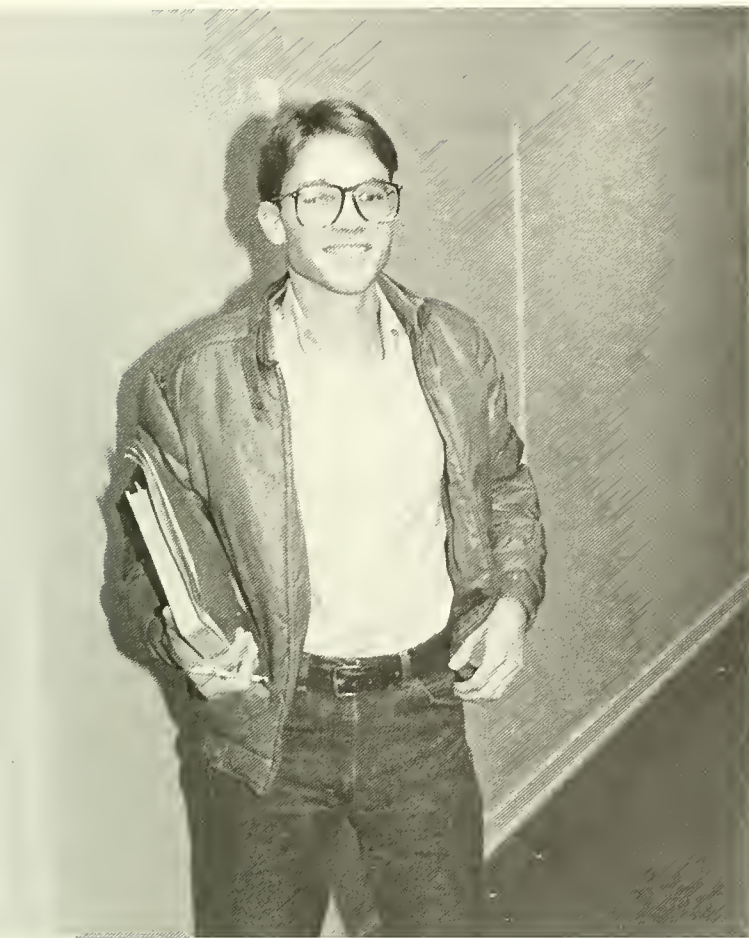

Our food is better because of Walter!

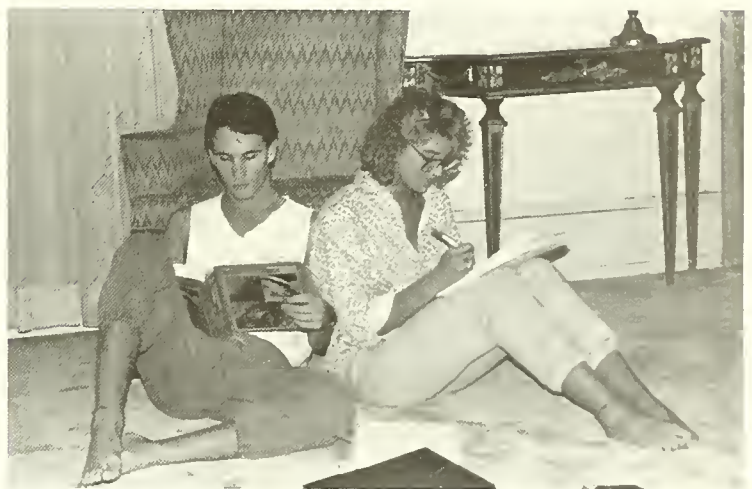

Gosh! Look at all of these parking tickets.

WE'RE GOING PLACES . . .

STUDENT LIFE

ANIMAL HOUSE

On August 20, 1986, a flood of freshman males poured into Lawton North Rouse, South Rouse, Whyte, and Oak Square dormitories. Filled with excitement and enthusiasm, the guys moved into their new domiciles and decorated them to their hearts' content. A day later, the returning sophomore men drugged back into the rooms, some in the same room as last year, others residing in new rooms. Together, both freshman and sophomore alike, adjusted to the "culture shock" which confronts each student, especially the freshmen.

After a couple of weeks, the dorm inhabitants had adjust-a week. The student came back to find that a slip of paper was lying on his desk stating that his room was in a condition that was not even described on the paper, a condition that is somewhat lower than poor but better than that of a nuclear bomb site after the bomb went off.

All in all, dorm life for Rouse, Lawton, Whyte, and Oak Square was an enjoyable and enriching experience for all male students, especially during Sunday between two and six when the opposite sex was allowed into the mens' dorms. Every now and then, the Residential Assistant on that hall had to remind some guys to open their doors.

"One September morning, a loud buzzing sound woke me up. Instinctively, I reached for my towel, soap, and shampoo bottle. I walked into the shower and five minutes later walked out. Unexpectedly the group in my section came into my room and laughed. Puzzled, I looked at my clock: 1:21 a.m. A fire drill at 1:21 a.m. in the morning?"

— Christopher Parker

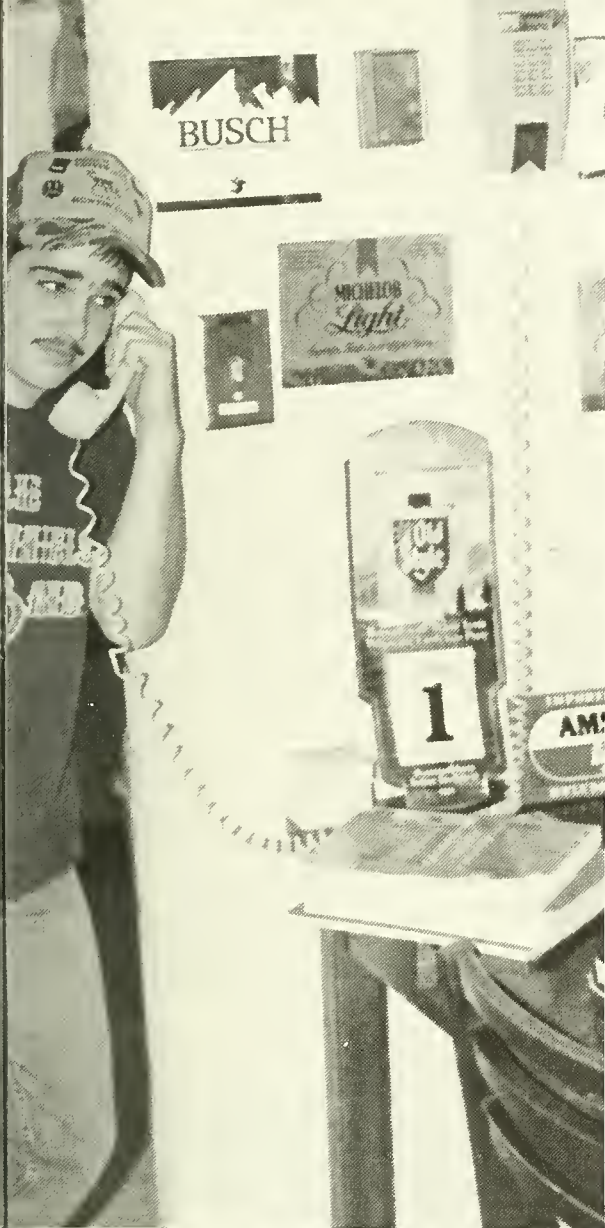

This reader takes a break to look at the camera.

"Mr. Sandman, bring me a dream . . ."

ed to their everyday environments. Water fights, riding skateboards in the hall, even bicycles in the halls, and practicing soccer and baseball in the hallways became an everyday occurrence. Putting up posters, paintings, arranging a high school diploma, setting pictures on the desk, and arranging the beds are what an Anderson College student does within the first twenty-four hours.

The mens' dorms were animal cages. Add to that the pranks; such as panty raids, that happened, and the excitement never ended. Another aspect of dorm life is the dreaded room inspection: the scourge of Anderson College that attacked the mens' dorms once

"At the sound of the buzzer, please leave your name and number ... BEEP!"

This is the room that rocks Anderson College!

Going for the winning point!

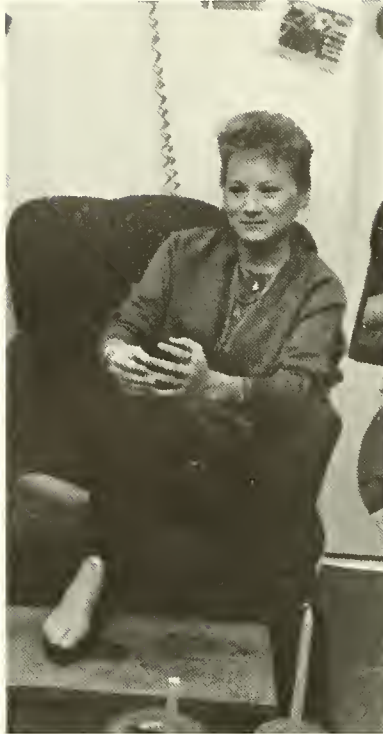

"I was so sure that I set my alarm!"

This looks like fun!

"Now, isn't that cute."

This young lady listens attentively to her friends.

"I'm having so much fun here!"

"EEEYAAHH!"

"This is not one of the redeeming qualities about the college life."

The four stooges?

"Reruns, reruns, nothing but reruns!"

TRANQUILITY

"It was all my fault. I never knew that popping popcorn could be so disturbing. It was 10:00 at night and I was studying for a math test and my stomach started craving some buttered popcorn. That's right, it was all my fault. As soon as I plugged in the popcorn machine, the heat caused the fire alarm to go off."

— Tara McEntire

Unlike the boy's dorms, the girl's dorms were a bit more calm and peaceful this year. It almost seemed as if the women displayed more maturity than that of the men. However, there was an occasional outbreak of hilarity and craziness that erupted from within the halls of Denmark, Pratt, New Dorm, and Kingsley.

The life of a girl in a dorm like Denmark consisted of visiting suitemates, talking on the phone, and having a male visitor during R.S.V.P. Nothing dastardly happened, except for carelessness on the part of some student who set off the alarms after 11:30 p.m. and the fact that quiet hours were more frequently respected by the girls than the boys.

Perhaps the most exciting and special thing that occurred in the girl's dorms this year is the close friendships that sprouted between roommates. Nothing could compare to what originated between the girls who roomed together. This is the stuff lifetime friendships are made of. If nothing else came out of their college experience, they did indeed meet new friends and people.

With a much quieter atmosphere, the girls in Denmark, Pratt, New Dorm, and Kingsley had better opportunities to meet new friends.

STUDENT CENTER

The Student Center saw many various activities which took place within its walls, activities such as ping pong, playing video games, ordering food at the canteen, watching the big screen T.V., and socializing in and around the canteen. This place was the center of attraction at Anderson College, providing a place where a student could rest and enjoy him or herself without having to worry too much about classes. Also, the Student Center was a place of movies; movies such as Teen Wolf and The Flamingo Kid were shown in the Backroom. Also there were contests and meetings held there. All in all, the Student Center remained the central point of interest at Anderson College.

Jeff Craft smiles as he prepares to smash the ball.

Bryan Simmons smiles as he scores.

Watching a big screen T.V. is one of the great attractions of Anderson College.

Some people just can't wait to open their mail in their room.

Each day, every Anderson College student checked his or her post office box at least once. The feeling that consumed a student as he or she opened the box to find mail in it is unexplainable, especially for those who never received much mail in the first place. However, the post office is more than just a few hundred mailboxes. It consists of several hard workers who daily put mail in hundreds of boxes.

This year the post office workers handled not only the resident's mail, but commuter's mail as well. Not only was mail from a person's hometown placed in the post office box, but college flyers and information pertaining to certain individuals also filled the boxes. These mailboxes were the lifeline for many students.

1. To go in or not to go in, that is the question!

Over the past nine months, there have been several ways for Anderson College students to unwind and to relax from the nerve-wracking pressures of each school day. Students chose either to sign up for intramurals or play in Whyte Gym, sometimes both. With both choices, Anderson College students had a great deal of exercise either way.

The free gym was designed for the student who, at just any time, wanted to go and shoot basketball, play racquetball, or lift weights. Several times a day, there would be two or three games going on at the same time.

COMMUTERS

COMMUTERS MAINTAINED A VITAL PART OF THE EVERYDAY LIFE AT ANDERSON COLLEGE.

One of the most vital parts of Anderson College are the commuters. Collectively, they constituted one-third of AC's student population this year. The commuters took an active part in Anderson College this year, proving their work as equal to the resident students.

Sometimes, a commuter may feel left out of the activities at AC, never really feeling accepted in the college family. However, this was not the case this year for the activities that took place. Dances such as the Halloween Dance and Christmas Formal provided such opportunities for commuters to feel more at "home." Concerts and chapel also became social points to an extent, giving commuters the chance to meet the residential students and make new friends.

Through the years, the SGA has provided such conveniences for the commuters like a commuter lounge and special parking to make access to classes easier. It was not hard to find freshman commuters such as Kevin and Rosemary Morris talking in the commuter lounge, preparing for classes.

The basic need for this year's commuter was a feeling of acceptance and self-worth. And that need was accomplished.

"LET'S ORDER PIZZA!"

As a student at Anderson College, we can improve our academic standing through the numerous opportunities for organized study provided by the college. The study sessions in Merritt and the library allow the student time and instruction on how to study better.

— Valerie Vaigneur

Just about every night in either the library or Merritt building, there were several people or groups preparing for a test or final exam. The library, with its many tables and three study rooms, provided ample space for students to study. Often times, groups would form in the lounge of the library in order to study.

Merritt study sessions took place in a multitude of places, including the parlor, stair well, stairs, second floor, and the colonade adjoining Merritt with Denmark. The perfect time to eat a Little Caesar's

Pizza was when studying with friends around eleven or twelve o'clock at night.

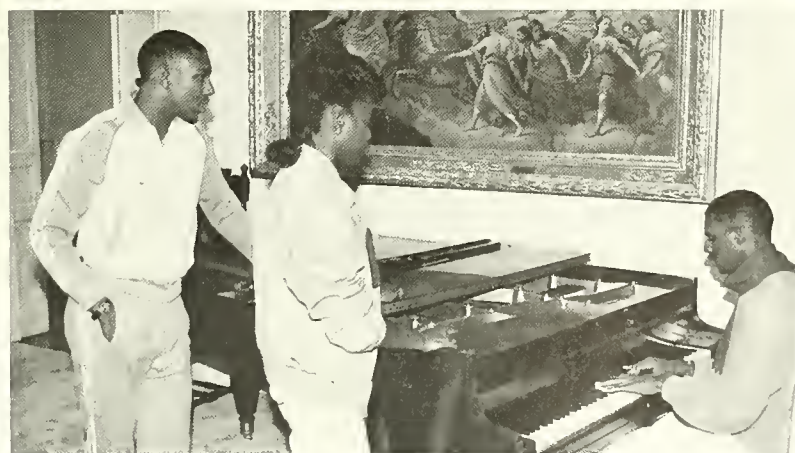

Aside from students working in Merritt, several organizations had meetings in this building. Every Wednesday night, Campus Ministries sponsored Celebration, a weekly Bible study group. Recipients of Leadership Scholarships met in Merritt parlor to go over information for activities.

Photographs for the yearbook and newspaper were also taken in the Merritt Building.

OIK, sponsored by Mary Martin, is a group of Fashion Merchandizing/Interior Design majors. The group sponsors and participates in events related to their majors. The club also provides the opportunity for members to apply for jobs and/or internships in their area of specialization. Each year the members of OIK makes an annual trip to New York to visit the fashion shops and look for the coming trends. They also go to Charlotte and Atlanta to view the markets. The OIK sponsors a Fashion Show and a Fashion Fair for high school students each year. They have speakers from the fashion field to provide a little more information. Mary Martin, sponsor of the club, says the goal of the OIK is to provide extra curricular activities for students that will broaden their horizons and open their eyes to the world of fashion.

1987 COLUMNS GOING ON . . .

Stepping Up in the World

The 1987 Columns' Staff (top to bottom) — Christopher Parker, Kim Fowler, Robert Stokes, Rosemary Morris, Kevin Morris, Keisha Johnson, Michael Sullivan, Wayne Berry, Bob Hanley (advisor). (Absent when picture was made, Tara McIntyre)

Going places — this theme describes all aspects of Anderson College life. From academics to athletics, from religious to social, Anderson College sets its standards high and invites all members of the A.C. family to fulfill their potential in an environment that challenges our ambitions, that nurtures our spirit, that provides the foundation stones from which we will build our lives. Anderson College is going places, and, if we accept the challenge and apply our energies to the fullest, we too will be taking that trip to the top.
